St Ives v Bude

Saturday 26th November 2016

KO 2:30 p.m.

St Ives Recreation Ground

We are delighted to welcome all spectators, players and officials to week eleven of the Tribute Western Counties West, especially on a day of international rugby on the television. Live rugby is simply better! Today's contest is a dual between the promoted sides from the Cornwall & Devon league during the last season.

Bude were worthy winners of the league and completed the double over The Hakes. A close match in North Cornwall saw a home win by 20:17, while a disappointing St Ives lost convincingly 7:28, the latter late in March, when the clubs stood first and second. St Ives field only six players from that squad, for today's encounter, while Bude has nine of those who achieved a fine victory.

Our visitors today have yet to win away from home, with four heavy defeats so far. They will be hoping for a return to the form they showed last year. St Ives has yielded an average of eighteen points at home this season, but their current form is as good as anyone in the league, with four wins from five. For their part they will want to send out another clear message that they are now worth more than mid table status. The match promises to be an intriguing one as it unfolds.

Of today's other fixtures, the clash between Cullompton and Truro is one to watch. Other sides above us should all win if matched go to form.

Today's match referee is Mr Andy Robinson. We wish him a successful and enjoyable day. Please respect him in his officiation.
